Born in 1995, A're is as unique as his name. This youngster is a well-spoken young man and makes great first impressions in that you never know what fantastic introduction you'll get from him. This kiddo loves to do magic, but that wasn't the name of the game today. Today was all about "Get into Music", a music mentorship program run by Roy Khanu that introduces kids to the art of channeling their emotions into music.

Although this wasn't a shoot about magic, A're did manage to pull a few tricks out of his hat by creating some musical magic for us. A're did a free-style rap about his own life and how important family is to him. He had the entire room grooving to the beats and touched by his heartfelt lyrics. This kid is truly talented.

A're is interested in learning hip-hop dancing as well as speak Spanish. Clearly this charming kid draws inspiration from many areas and "creative" is definitely another word that describes A're.

Like many kids in foster care (especially those who have been in the system for a significant amount of time) A're has connections he wants to maintain. A're hopes that he will find a family of his own that is sensitive to that and will help him keep those connections.

Is a platinum record in A're's future? Perhaps, but the big hit we want for him is a permanent and safe family he can call his own.

If you have a heart for older children and would like to learn more about this unique and creative youth, please give us a call. Together we can work some magic for A're.
