Meet Alicia, born in 1995 this gal's full of surprises and has many talents. We met Alicia at the Maple Conservatory of Dance in Irvine, California for her very first ballet lesson. It's the holiday season and the task at hand was to learn a few moves in the Dance of the Sugarplum Fairies from the Nut Cracker.

Under the tutelage of Charles Maple, the founder of the company – Alicia got a first hand look at the rigors of being a ballet dancer. There are a lot of terms and technical aspects of ballet to learn. From lacing up her shoes to posing oneself in the first position, second position, back to first and then a skip, Alicia tackled them all with energy and enthusiasm.

Alicia loves to perform in talent shows so this was right up her alley. Aside from performing, Alicia loves to read and is quite athletic which is no surprise; she learned quickly and handles complex bends with great coordination and poise commensurate with her athletic abilities. Alicia also has a great voice. She loves to sing and she even sang a few of her favorite songs for us.

This girl has a future in the performing arts. She hopes to use music as a therapeutic medium for children some day because she wants to become a child's therapist when she grows up. Finding a present is one of the character's tasks which also led to happiness. We're hoping Alicia will find that ultimate gift of a permanent family that will welcome her and fill one another's heart with love and fulfillment.
