There's always an award show in Tinseltown and on Wednesday's Child, we're never short of stars. Meet a beautiful college bound young lady who has overcome many obstacles and is focused on a career. We met Daisy at Platinum Publicity's MTV Movie Awards Suite to learn more about this dynamic young lady.

Daisy was the VIP guest of Melanie Segal, who hosted this posh swag event at the W Hotel in Hollywood, California. Daisy rubbed shoulders with the Hollywood elite but the star she wanted to meet and hung around with was FOX 11 News Anchor, Christine Devine. While the two made their way to the various vendors gifting our young lady with clothes and accessories, Daisy talked about her past and her dream to become a broadcast journalist.

Daisy was born in 1991. In her own words, she tells us that she came from El Salvador when she was 10 years old and struggled to learn the English language and to speak it flawlessly. This young lady was expressive and articulate and her genuine compassionate spirit was quite evident. A leader in her own right, Daisy has a passion for saving the environment and is in charge of her school's recycling program. Daisy is not atypical of a teen age girl, she loves to socialize, listen to music and talk with her friends on the phone. When she's not being a teen-ager and taking a break from saving the environment, Daisy watches CNN, the local news and rehearses in front of the mirror for her debut, someday as a reporter on television.

Daisy hopes to follow in the foot steps of our Anchor, Christine Devine and attend the Walter Cronkite School of Journalism at Arizona State University. With all her abilities and goals she's set in place for her and almost reaching adulthood, Daisy tells us that she still wants a family to call her own. A family to come home to when she's away at college; a family to support her dreams; a family to show her love when things get tough and a family to share all of her accomplishments and milestones with. Daisy is open to all types of family constellations.

This was Daisy's debut on FOX 11 News. We're sure to see her someday from the field reporting live, perhaps on environmental issues and then making that phone call to her family right after sharing the excitement of her first broadcast. Could that family be you?
