Under the bright sunny skies of Downtown Los Angeles, it's winter time. We're kicking off the Holiday Season with some ice skating. Novices on ice, we met Jasmine and David at the LA Kings Pershing Square Ice rink for one on one ice skating lesson from LA Kings Alumni, Jim Fox and of course, Bailey, the mascot.

Let's lace up and hit the ice!

Although this was their first time in an ice skating rink, you'd never have known it by watching this brother and sister team. Jasmine and David are quick learners and naturals on ice, both with a lot of balance and poise. Jasmine was extremely focused on getting pointers on the ice and once David got the hang of it, he immediately wanted to grab the hockey stick and shoot with hockey great, Jim Fox. This pair might turn out to include a hockey player and figure skater!

We didn't forget about Bailey, the Kings' loveable mascot, though. It was evident that both kids had a lot of fun and affection as they gave Bailey, the cuddly and sometimes mischievous mascot, the attention he needed.

Jasmine was born in 1998. This little girl has a love of stories and has many of them to tell. One additional story she can add to a chapter in her life book is how she took to the ice one afternoon and skated like a natural. Jasmine tells us she wants to be a Police Officer when she grows up. Protecting others seems to also come natural to Jasmine and is evidenced in the way she keeps a watchful eye over her little brother.

David was born in 2001. Wherever Jasmine is, there you'll find David -- beneath the wings of her big sister. This kid is warm, affectionate and full of fun energy. He's always up for trying something new. If skating wasn't enough, this kid might even have hockey in his future. Like his big sister, he also wants to be a cop someday. But whatever they ultimately grow up to be -- from police officer to hockey player and figure skater -- we know that Jasmine and David will be there for each other.

We want to keep these two siblings together. This holiday season, we hope that Jasmine and David find a way to skate into your hearts and that they find a forever family that can nurture them individually while raising them together.
