With spring in the air, it's a good time for a little self-care. Taking time out from our usual and often hectic routine to do something relaxing ... or something that taps into our often-neglected inner-artists ... is important. And it was this kind of break that Jessica (2003) joined us for as we made a day of it at Color Me Mine in Valencia, California – just sitting and chatting and painting.

Jessica is an active girl with diverse interests. She's artistic, athletic and a very good student. Jessica hopes to be a marine biologist someday, so it was no surprise that she picked a ceramic whale to paint. Bubbly and articulate, Jessica shared with us that she wants a safe and permanent family that will love her for who she is and not give up on her.

Taking a break and enjoying a "play day" is one way to refresh our inner strength, and perhaps one thing that allows Jessica to keep a positive disposition. Jessica also possesses an openness and willingness to share feelings in spite of her past. We are hoping to assist Jessica in finding a forever family that will be there for her and help her not just sustain but live a productive and balanced life.
