This week we're on set with Jessica, a warm and spirited teen born in 1994 with a passion to help other people. We met Jessica on the set of FOX News with our news anchor, Christine Devine. Like most teenagers, Jessica loves to watch TV and was interested in taking a behind-the-scenes look at the world of television.

From a walk through the newsroom to meeting the crew in the control booth, Jessica learned all about tracking news as it comes in 24/7 and watched our anchor do her cut-ins. Jessica got a condensed intern experience in just a few short hours but was ready to give it a try. So how did she do at the anchor desk? She looked like a natural and a pro.

Aside from being a typical teen that values peer relationships and likes to listen to music and go shopping, Jessica also has a heart for helping others – particularly younger children and infants. Jessica aspires to be a neo-natal nurse and hopes to study nursing in college.

When asked about the type of forever family she'd like to have for herself, she shared that she would like to be one of the older kids in a family so she can help take care of the younger kids. Jessica also told us that she would like to be an adoptive parent herself someday!

After this week's experience as part of the world of television, perhaps Jessica will consider incorporating what she learned at the station into her career aspirations and become a medical commentator for FOX News! Whatever path she ultimately takes, the love and support of a family could make a world of difference in her success and happiness.
