Wednesday's Child

Meet soft-spoken and easy-going Juan, this week's Wednesday's Child. Born in 1996, Juan is an articulate teen with a kindred soul that desires to connect with and get to know people.

We took time out on this afternoon to hang out with and get to know Juan at Shoreline Village in Long Beach. While taking a scenic ride along the harbor and the Queen Mary, we discovered that Juan likes soccer and baseball and is a Dodgers fan. Additionally, Juan has a knack for the arts and humanities.

Juan's thoughtfulness and articulate nature are sure to lend themselves well towards many of his life's goals – including his desire to publish a book that he's already writing. With a sense of proprietary claim, Juan didn't give us too much detail as to the storyline. But we're guessing that, parallel to Juan's desire to connect with others, people will be drawn to him and his work.

Like many others, Juan has a story to tell about his journey in foster care. Hopefully Juan's story turns out to include a "cast of characters" in the form of a forever family that will make an epic impact on his life by providing him the support and direction needed to fulfill his goals and dreams.

For now Juan's journey in foster care continues, but along with Juan we're waiting for the next chapter to unfold. Is your family meant to become permanent characters in Juan's life-story?
