Freddie Mac Foundation's
Wednesday's Child

This week on Wednesday's Child we're "rapping" things up ...literally. Take a look and a listen as Noel (1999) goes into the recording studio, writes some original lyrics and then lays down a track of her own. And to top it off, Anchor Christine Devine and rap-royalty Yolanda Whitaker (AKA Yo-Yo) join Noel and sing back-up.

Under the tutelage of Yolanda Whitaker, Noel put the words that she wrote herself to music composed by her musical mentor-for-the-day. It soon became apparent that Noel has heart and talent. One line from Noel's song – "I want to take the good in people and make it so the world is equal..." – resonates with what so many children in foster care feel.

Noel is a very outgoing child and has been described as a child that "...has never met a stranger" in that she instantly makes people around her comfortable. In addition to being talented and engaging, Noel is also a good student who proudly shows others her good grades. Noel sings in the church choir and enjoys singing or dancing in talent shows. Noel would like to have a forever family that is there for her through thick and thin to help equalize at least her little corner of the world.

While it was a "rap" for us in the recording studio, the next step in the process of you learning more about Noel and about adoption is to tune in to Wednesday's Child and then call us at 1-866-921- ADOPT (2367)
