Ready for a make over? While finding permanent and loving homes is the primary goal of Wednesday's Child, we also provide many "firsts" for our deserving children. We met Ruby at Sephora in Hollywood, California for a personal make over by make-up guru, Carol Shaw, founder of LORAC cosmetics.

All of our kids shine in their own special way and Ruby is no exception. Born in 1996, she's a bright, beautiful and smart young lady. Ruby is doing very well in school and loves to read. Ruby also loves all types of sports, which gives Ruby a well-rounded balance of athleticism, beauty and brains. Ruby is also affectionate, engaging and has a heart for animals.

For a young lady, having someone take the time to share everyday tips can be quite important to building self-esteem. For many children in foster care, this piece is often missing. Carol Shaw showed Ruby how not to cover up but enhance her natural beauty. As you can see there wasn't much needed to make this jewel of a young lady glow and shine.

Relationships are important to Ruby. She has many friends and likes to hang out with them like most youth her age. For this “tween”, she would like nothing more than to enter into her teenage years with an adoptive family to call her own – a family that will help guide her and provide positive role-modeling. With the foundation of a permanent and loving home, Ruby will be on the right road to realizing her hopes and dreams and having a bright future.
