Mention basketball or football and a quiet, self-assured smile will appear on Terry's face. Confident in his athletic abilities, Terry will tell you about the sports teams that he's played on the past and the new football team that he's part of now.

So what's Terry's favorite football team? UCLA, of course. And to give him a head-start in looking at his future endeavors, we took Terry to the University of California Los Angeles to meet with his future college team as UCLA teams up with Wednesday's Child.

Terry was born in 1995 and is far from done growing yet. A linebacker and a quarterback – Terry got some tips from his favorite college team members who play his positions. Terry's not old enough to be recruited by the NCAA yet, but the head coach was taking notice.

From passing the ball and making a play to doing chores around the house, Terry is a team player and will help out those around him. Terry has a calm and at-ease manner that makes him endearing to those who meet him. His quiet strength and mature demeanor makes him appear older than his 14 years of age. You'd never know it meeting him for the first time, but this kid is a jokester. Tell him a good joke or a funny story and you catch a glimpse of a little boy who simply wants to have some fun.

We took a stroll in the UCLA Hall of Fame museum and saw many trophies. Wouldn't a permanent and loving family help a young man like Terry strive even harder to achieve and fill a household with awards? Our hope for Terry this New Year is for him to be part of a loving family to call his own and a place to hang up his jersey.

Terry is looking for a family who loves sports and will be there to cheer him on while he does his thing -- on the field or court as well as in the game of life. Call us to inquire about Terry joining your family.
